

ians would never be raised to the Chief Inspectorship.

In connection with Inspector McAvoy's political "pull," it was mentioned that Inspector Williams had all the information in his power which could be given to bear, and in addition was held in great esteem by the Astors and other people of wealth high up in social as well as commercial circles.

CAPT. WESTERVELT.

Whether these respective "pulls" would avail the inspectors or not was a question which occupied the speculators.

No officer above the rank of round-can can be reduced to the ranks. When sergeants, captains, or inspectors are punished they have to be transferred, fine or dismissal from the force.

Transfer or fine would mean little to a captain, much less to an inspector. Dismissal would mean everything, but it is really the only punishment to be feared by officers of superior rank.

CAPT. DOHERTY.

Recognizing that Capt. Hynes appears to be in deadly earnest, it was natural enough for the commissioners to argue that, if the "pulls" of the various inspectors in their subordinates would mean either nothing or the very worst.

It was argued that the only hope for the accused officials was the possible refusal of the Commissioners to entertain the charges. It is necessary for the President of the Board to accept the charges before he can be charged. President Martin would not say this morning whether he had done this or not. After the examination and cross-examination that prevailed in the big white building on Mulberry street.

To each of the six Police Courts there will be assigned two justices, and three will attend the Special Sessions Court.
